Davis Succeeded in Relieving Them of Se eral Very Valuable Bundles, Charles Davis, a professional thief, was arrested on Monday and was held for the Grand Jury on a charge of grand larceny. For about month Davis had been robbing errand boys by the old dodge of inducing them to deliver a message for him, he holding their bundles till they came back. As soon as their backs were turned he made off in the opposite direction with the bundle

On Wednesday a Mrs. Sinclair, who lives at 207 West Thirty-third street, came to the West Thirty-seventh street police station with two parcels containing women's dresses. She said that she had bought them from a peddler named Davis at a very low price. She afterward read of the arrest of a thiof named Davis, and suspected that he might be the man from whom she had bought the dresses. The superintendent of Simpson, Crawford & Simpson's identified one of the dresses as having been made by the firm for Mrs. Renjamin Wood, who was stopping at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. It cost $150. Mrs. Wood intended wearing it at the reception given to the Princess Eulalis. On May 31 the dress was given to an errand boy to deliver. At Twenty-third street and Sixth avenue the boy met Davis, who got him to take a note to a lictitious address in Twenty-first street. The boy positively identified Davis yesterday as the man who had taken his bundle. as having been made by the firm for Acquitted of Causing His Playmate's Beath. Richard Hildebrand, 13 years old, of 302 East Seventy-fifth street, was drowned on Saturday at the foot of East Seventy-first stress. Yesterday it was reported that Gusave Della, a 9-year-old boy, living in the same house with Hildebrand, had pushed the oy overboard. Della was arrested. He said that Hildebrand was trying to fish up a bit of friftwood with a stick when he fell in the water.

Eight-year-old Charles Juder of 1.221 Avenue A said he was near hidebrand when belia came along and ordered the toy to get off a stone that he was sitting on. Hidebrand refused to move, and Juder says that belia pushed him so that he toppled overboard and Other boys asserted that Juder was a block away when Hildebrand fell into the water, and Justice Simms discharged Della.

He is also charged with swindling a syndicate owning the Kitty Morris mine, at Butte out of $40,000, and also securing $10,000 from Butte people on a fraudulent morriguse. Olds disappeared about a week ago, but so far no trace of him has been found. He is till years of age, and not long ago negotisted a sale of a mine to New York men for $00,000.

Not Even Druggists' Liceuses in this Town Boston, June 15 .- At the recent municipal election the adjoining city of Somerville voted no license. Last night the Aldermen voted. 5 to 3, not to grant the usual drug store licenses for the sale of liquo's for medicinal purposes. With a population of nearly 50,000, and with miles of steam and street railroads, big freight yards and factories abounding in danger to life and limb, there will now be no place in the entire city where alcoholic stimulants can be legally purchased in case of sickness or the emergency of an accident.

Burned to Death in Her Room.

Mrs. Lizzie Honry, 44 years old, who lived with her husband and five children on the top floor of 241 East Fifty-ninth street, was burned to death yesterday morning. The firemen found the body lying under a bed. It was burned to a crisp.
It is supposed that the fire was caused by the explosion of a lighted lamp which the woman carried in her hand.

Adam Pierret, 74 years old, of College Point had been suffering from an incurable disease for years. Wednesday evening he was found unconscious in the rear of his home with the arteries of his left wrist severed. Near by lay a rusty knile smeared with blood. He was attended by Dr. Steffens, but had lost so much blood that he died yesterday morning. JUGGLERS FROM BOMBAY.

THEIR SLEIGHT OF HAND IS MODERN. WITH NO MANGO TREE IN IT. They Are Snake Charmers, and They Do a Number of Pretty Tricks with Water, and with No Devices for Concentment.

Mr. Henry Ballantine, United States Consul at Bombay, is in this city on his way to Chicago, taking with him five Indian jugglers from Bombay. Three of the jugglers gave a private exhibition yesterday afternoon on a Twenty-third street stage, and, while they did only a few tricks new in this country, they did many of the old tricks without any of the assisting screens, cornucopias, and other concealing devices. Some of their performances introduced two bideous cobras, both of which left their baskets at one time and that was not at all in the programme, but the spectators, like the old lady who was in a wreck on her first railroad trip, thought it was the regulation thing, and were not frightened.

The Indians are tall, lithe, smiling, talkative fellows, who do most of their work squatted on the stage in a friendly manner, and are picturesquely robed in flowing white and turbaned in orange. All of their "layout" is brought on the stage in a red jute sack, which is thrown on the middle of the stage, and from which they extract human bones, musical instruments, live snakes, water-filled jars, or anything else required. They play a great deal on musical instruments, or instruments that are called musical-a hand drum and the Bombay equivalent for the bagpipes. In all the tricks which were new here water was used. In one a boat about eighteen inches long, made of jade or some such mineral, was laid on the stage, and in the fore part of it an opium pipe was stuck like a mast. Then the burned turban.

They delight in apparent awkwardness. Occasionally, when something is to be calmed, the very observant spectator is sure he has located that something in a stiffly held hand or under an arm. Just when you are ready to swear to your astuteness the juggler lets you see you were mistaken and you hope no one notired how you were fooled.

The cobras enoy the distinction of heing quite the ugliest reptiles in appearance and temper with which man has made acquaintance. They were in separate buskets, and, the covers being removed, one of the jugglers attempted to charm them with his gourd pipe; but the charm did not work, both snakes hissed and struck at the man, and then both left their baskets, and, with their ugly, hooded heads erect, made a dash for liberty. They were pounced on, captured in bare hands, and returned to their baskets.

Afterward another juggler tried his mouth on the pipe, and because he played better, or worse, the cabras were charmed. They raised their heads, and he slowly waked about them. They followed, turning their flat belles in the basket so that they always faced the player. Without touching them, and still delocously piping, he included them to hide their heads in the lasket, where they were evered and fastened in.

On Monday night the canal boat Michael Driscoll tied up at the foot of Market street, in the East Liver. Its captain, William Walsh. decided to hold a can racket-a dance garnished with mixed ale. Three girls from the "Ink Pot." 146 Cherry street, were the belies of this canal boat ball. About 11 o'clock Jerry Cronin was sitting on the dock near the canal boat when he saw an old man fall overboard. He and two of his companions fished the old man out and sent him home. As the old man stag-gered up the street, Cronin heard a scream and a splash in the water. Cronin jumped into the water, but the figure sank before he could reach it.

THE FORD'S THEATRE INQUEST.

Experts Say the Collapse Was Due to the WASHINGTON, June 15 .- In accordance with the decision of Chief Justice Bingham yesterday. Dr. l'atterson, the Coroner of the district, began a new inquest this morning over the bodies of the victims of Priday's disaster. The old jury was resummoned for the new inquest.

Col. Ainsworth sent a letter to the Coroner complaining that the jury were prejudiced against him by the testimony of disaffected clerks and the rictous proceedings of the previous illegal inquiry, and urging his right to be present by counsel and to cross-examine the witnesses. Coroner Patterson refused the rewitnesses. Coroner latterson relused the request.

The first witness was James L. Parsons, a contractor and builder, who testified that he had examined the old theatre last month with a view to submitting a bid for making the proposed afterations.

Q-could the aterations have been made without shoring: A-They could not. You could not with safety, have removed a single brick without shoring that the work could have been done with absolute safety.

Mr. Edward Clark, the architect of the Capitol, and Thomas R. Entwistle, Inspector of Buildings of the District, gave similar testilegidings of the District, gave similar testimons.

Francis Sasse, the engineer of the old theatre toniding, said he made the specification for the electric light plant, he was a mechanical steam engineer. He had built an archway and a seven-room dwelling, but had no other experience in building. No one had told him now to draw the plans and specifications. He looked at the excavation overs day, but saw no signs of shoring. The specifications seemed to be all right. The contractors evidently thought so, and Col. Ainsworth was pleased.

Mr. Sasse said he did not consider himself a competent man to superintend the work; he relied on the competency of Mr. Dant, the contractor. He felt no danger, and was in the excavation a few minutes before the floors fell. Several builders testified that they would not have attempted to do the work without shoring.

The inquest was adjourned until 11 o'clock.

SHE HAS COME ALL THE WAY FROM

Minnie Palmer, who arrived a few days ago rom London, where she had been with the London Galety Company, took a brief part before Judge McAdam of the Superior Court, yesterday. In the action she has pending against John R. Rogers, the theatrical manager, for an absolute divorce. She had passed her husband going to Europe as she came

She was quite tanned and rather thin. She said she was married to Rogers at Mount Vernon in May, 1882. She left the court room after answering a few formal questions put by her counsel. A. H. Hummel. Mr. Hummel said she would return to Europe on Saturday. In her complaint she charges her husband with various acts of infidelity committed in 1802. Counsel for Rozers has not asked that the complaint be made more definite. Rogers was the manager for J. K. Emmet, the elder, at the time of the marriage. They were living at the Gramercy apartment house when they quarrelled, in November, 1802. He denied that he chased her about the flat with a carving kalfe. She swore to the complaint in this action in London on Feb. 27. William J. Campbell, Superintendent of the Horton Ice Cream Company, was before Judge McAdam for an absolute divorce from his wife Marie. He festifled that they were married on Dec. 20, 1879, and have one child, a boy of nine years. Two detectives testified that in the past five years she had been living at different houses with R. J. Freeman, an oil merchant, of 12 North Moore street. They said that the pair had live | at 87 Sands street, Brooklyn, and subsequently at 232 West Elxteenth street. She did not defend the case Decision was reserved.

ADVICE FROM THE BENCH. Judge McLennan Tries to Unite a Young

Couple who were Suing for Divorce. Utics, June 15.-Peter Lee Atherton of Louisville, Kr., has been sued by his wife for limited divorce, alimony, and the custody of their three-year-old daughter, cruelty being charged. The plaintiff is a daughter of the late Prof. Kelsey of Hamilton College. The case has been on trial before Supreme Court Justice P. B. McLennan in this city all the week. Last evening, just before court adjourned, Judge McLennan gave the princijourned. Judge Mellennan gave the principals a talking to. He told them that they ought to get together. He said:

"It seems to me, considering this child, that this couple ought to get together and see if they cannot continue some way as a man and wife, especially as father and mother. Whatever the humiliation, even for the time below, it is the duty of these two parties to get being, it is in only of these two parties to get over the craftle of their little child and settle their difficulty, and the parties who attempts to interfare are no friends of either. Hemember, whichever way the Court renders judgment, this little girl will be without a father or a mother, and to all intents and purposes will be so through life. Before the final step in this case is taken. I ask that these two young people talk matters over."

The plaintiff and defendant were greatly affected, and, as the court adjourned, it was thought that a reconciliation might take place just evening. This morning, however, it was jound that no advances had been made and the taking of evidence was resumed. It is said by friends of the plaintiff that she was willing to do her share toward a settlement if a chance had been given her. Atherton obtained a divorce some time ago in Kentucky on the ground of desertion.

Goddard married his wife in New York in 1883. Mrs. Goddard had too lofty views to suit her huseland. She neglected him and her home, while she developed certain latentialent which she believed she possessed—first in studying music, then modelling, then free-hand drawing, then German, then French-and Goddard claimed that he spent thousands of dollars for various musical instruments, of dollars for various musical instruments, materials, and teachers. He said in his cross bill that she contracted debts and spent money in the most lavish manner until he was bankrupted. The couple separated when Goddard refused to allow her to go on the stage. His wife refused to allow him to smoke in the house or to attend haseball games. He said he never stayed out late at night, except the night Harrison was elected President in 1884. Goddard had a letter from Foston showing that Mrs. Goddard's stage name is Clara Froman, and her specialty spectacular farce comedy. A letter from her to her imancial agent at Boston was also introduced in the trial, asking him to hurry up her alimony. She was anxious to go to the World's Fair.

Mrs. Frederick W. Vanderbilt Receives the Crew-A Banquet in the Evening. NEWPORT, June 15. - The public reception to the Viking's crew by the city took place this afternoon with fine weather and under most nuspicious conditions. There was a general display of flags and work was discontinued in nany places. The festivities began at 2 delock, when the church bells of the city were rung for fifteen minutes. At 3:30 Capt. Andersen and his mon were taken for a long drive accompanied by Mayor Horton and other city officials and the local Norwegian committee. who received the Vikings in the New York Yasht Club house, from which the was started. The principal points of interest were visited and a call made at the residence of Mderman Daniel R. Fearing, who is Chairmannof the city's reception committee, also at Routh Polat, the palatial residence of Frederick W. vanderbilt. At the former place Mrs. Fearing received, and in that duty at her home Mrs. Vanderbilt was nesisted by Mrs. William Postend Miss Post, Refreshments were served at each place, and at Mrs. Vanderbilt's the famous automatic organ was placed. Mrs. Vanderbilt's would have served an elaborate dinner had time been sufficient. At each cottagathe Vikings gave their peculiar cheer. The party then drave to Touro Park, where a great crowd gathered. The strange old stone mill, supposed to have been huilt by the Norsemen, was examined, and pieces of it will be taken to Norway as mementos of the visit. At To dook occurred the grand banquet in Masonic Hall. Mayor Horton presided, Lieut. The former made a speech of welcome, which was responded to by Capt. Andersen in delightful broken English. The Captain told some of the exprences of the men coming over and said that the Viking was safer than fifty percent, of the seagoing craft nowadays. The Viking was beached to-day and thoroughly cleaned for her run to New York. She will start about noon to-increw. Excursions were made to this city from Providence and Boston to-day by Norwegians anxious to see the Viking and their countrymen. A large number of graft, including tugs and yachts, will escort the Viking out beyond the limits of the harbor. of Alderman Daniel B. Fearing, who is Chair-

COCK FIGHTING IN CAMP.

A Big Main Arranged for To-night-Con pany B Losing its Beards.

STATE CAMP. PRESSRILL, June 15 .- A sham battle this afternoon between Companies A and H attracted a large crowd of visitors from Peckskill and the surrounding country. When the musketry firing was followed by a bayonet charge by both companies many of the women among the spectators shut their eyes, and one woman fainted at the sight of the two companies rushing together with fixed bayonets. Just as the two lines were within three feet of one another the command "Rally" was given. and the spectators were spared the sight of

and the spectators were spared the sight of bloodshed.

The new secret society, which calls itself the "Vampires," at a meeting on Tuesday night decided that no member of Company B should any longer be allowed to wear a moustache or beard of any description. Last night the organization proceeded to put its rule into effect, and several members of the ecompany were caught and this morning their faces were cleanly shaven. The "Vampires" say the rule must be respected, and every member of the company must place himself in the hands of the camp harber for a clean shave before camp breaks, or the organization will do the shaving itself.

Cock fighting has become quite the vogue in camp. Last night a lively fight of three rounds was held just outside of camp between Spinach, a bird owned by a private of Company D, and another bird, owned by a member of Company I. A corporal of Company D did the heeling, and a great crowd of soldlers witnessed the fight. At the end of three rounds victory for either.

the birds were separated without a decided victory for either.

A big main is being arranged for to-morrow night between birds owned by members of D. and J. To-night there is some lively tetting on both sides, but the odds are being given by D. Spinach will be their leading bird in the-main, and, as he crowed lustily after his fight last night, they have taken this as an omen of success, and are laying odds on their birds. There will be three contests. The first two will be for $500 a side, and the third will be for $100.

$14,500 FOR MR. DE WITT.

The Referees in the County Bond Case Es-David Barnett, Gen. James Jourdan, and Asa W. Tenny, the referees appointed by the Supreme Court in Brooklyn to pass upon the claim of ex-Corporation Counsel W. C. De Witt for $20,000 against the county of Kings for legal services in defending the suit in for legal services in delending the suit in which the validity of a large issue of county bonds was called in question, have allowed lir. De Witt $14,500.

The referees in their report to the Supreme Court say that they were greatly embarrassed by the extraordinary variance in the value placed upon Mr. De Witt's services by the various witnesses examined, some placing them as low as $3,500, and others as high as $25,000.

The Infanta at Niagara Palls, NIAGARA FALLS, June 15 .- The Infanta and Shortly after 10 o'clock they entered carriage for a drive, visiting Goat Island, the Sister Islands, the inclined railway, and other points of interest about the Falls. At about noon they returned to the hotel. This afternoon they drove across to the Canadian side, and afterward took a trip to Lewiston on the observation train, returning here at 7 this evening. To-morrow a trip on the "Maid of the Mist" will be taken. The party was to leave here to-morrow morning, but the Infanta has expressed a desire to travel by night, and the departure has been postponed until to-morrow night. No municipal demonstration has been arranged of interest about the Falls. At about noon they

To-night the Duchess of Montpensier, for convenience no longer the Infanta Eulalia, comes to this city from Niagara Falls. She will go to the home of Mr. Juan de Ceballos, at 28 East Sixty-second street. Mr. Ceballos and his family will vacate the house and go to their home in the country during the stay of the Duchess. Mr. Joseph Stickney, owner of the yacht Susquehanna, has put it at her disposal, and either Saturday or Sunday the Duchess and her husband will sail up to Newport. They will leave this country on the 24th on the Touraine.

Fast Time by the Infanta's Special. CHICAGO, June 15.-The Michigan Centra special which left here yesterday morning for New York, carrying the Infanta Eulalia and he suite, made the run between Chicago and Niagara Falls, 514 miles, in a fraction under cleven hours. The running time, including stops, was forty-seven miles an hour; exclusive of stops, over fifty miles an hour. The time or-iginally scheduled for the special was fourteen hours, but it was three hours ahead of time at Niagara Falls.
